

DEVELOPERS ON DEVELOPERS

Websites with Insight into the Developer Community

www.joelonsoftware.com

JOEL ON SOFTWARE
www.joelonsoftware.com

Joel Spolsky is a software developer from the Big Apple. Joel's well known here at Programmer's. He submitted some great product reviews for this publication a few years back. He's been sharing his thoughts about software development, management, business, and the Internet on this site since 2000. Joel's fun to read—witty, irreverent, and highly opinionated.

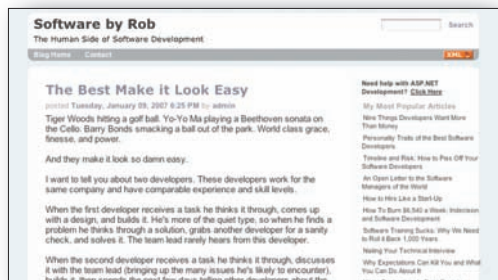

www.larkware.com

LARKWARE NEWS—THE DAILY GRIND
www.larkware.com

This is Mike Gunderloy's site. Mike's a prolific software author, writer, and editor living in the Pacific Northwest—a computing professional since 1992. He posts updates every business day on software he's installed or news of interest to software developers that he's come across. You can read this on the Larkware home page, or subscribe to it as an RSS feed.

www.softwarebyrob.com

SOFTWARE BY ROB
www.softwarebyrob.com

Rob Walling is a software developer from Los Angeles who's presently an owner of a consulting firm that performs ASP.NET development and hiring consultation to clients throughout the United States. He posts some great articles on this site on hiring, managing and motivating developers, improving development skills, and software startups.